

3.- CROSS BATH & WELLS (England, 2016)

These pictures are part of some research carried out in March 2016 at Bath Spa University, which included an Erasmus visit too. The purpose of the stay was to study the shared cultural heritage, at a Thermal Historical Town and Site. In this way, both images are inspired in the natural spring water as a subject of our study.

The first photograph was taken in the city of Bath and the second one in Wells. Both places have meaningful names related to spring water. Medieval Wells offers a very peaceful rural area dedicated to agriculture and music education, while Bath is more of a 21st-century city, dedicated to tourism on all levels. Bath and Wells have been sacred sites beside spring water, and are centres of Christianity that have attracted pilgrims and tourists alike over the centuries.

To conclude, it must be said that the images are part of the Intellectual output of the European project "Innovation and Capacity Building in Higher Education for Cultural Management, Hospitality and Sustainable Tourism in European Cultural Routes [Cultour+]"

Juana Gómez Pérez